Blues Riffs- A riff is a slang term for a short musical phrase that is usually repeated or repeatable. Simple blues riffs are perhaps the most common way for one to begin improvising on the diatonic harmonica. Use repetition of a single riff, and pauses between these riffs, to create a more melodic feeling to your playing.

Blues players can achieve a tritone by bending the 6 draw. On a diatonic, starting hole is hole 1 draw. On a C-chromatic,

starting hole is hole 1

draw, resulting in D-minor with a raised 6th. This is the traditional way of playing Blues on Chromatic.

The terminology for other positions is slightly more varied.

Chugging a bass line over a 12 bar blues

By far the most common use of 6ths on guitar is when guitarists play the so-called "blues shuffle" or "boogie-woogie" that accompanies many rock 'n' roll, rockabilly, and blues songs. In a blues shuffle, a root and 5th are alternated with a root and 6th. Here, the progression is A-D-E-A, I-IV-V-I in A major.

The Richter-tuned harmonica, or 10-hole harmonica (in Asia) or blues harp (in America), is the most widely known type of harmonica. It is a variety of diatonic harmonica, with ten holes which offer the player 19 notes (10 holes times a draw and a blow for each hole minus one repeated note) in a three-octave range.. The riffs. In the end, you don't want to be able to only improvise guitar solos, but also develop the ability to improvise in your rhythm guitar playing. Looking at various variations to the regular 12 bar blues shuffle is the first step to send you down that path.
