I am running all of the video (blu-ray and HD cable) through an HDMI splitter directly to the projector. I would run all of the audio, from each source, directly to the receiver via Optical Cables, but it turns out the receiver's optical inputs do not work. I've had to resort to Analog RCA for the audio.

I had to set the blu-ray up to match TV and used the quick guide . The sound from the TV (5.1) going thru the RCA unit is really good compared to the TV sound alone and I only use about vol 30 on the blu-ray volume. The mute on the blu-ray works (when the TV speakers are turned off). When playing a blu-ray disk the picture is excellent.
