WHAT CAME FROM THE STARS by Gary D. Schmidt, Clarion, September 2012, 304p., ISBN: 978-0-547-61213-3 "In the end there's just a song Comes crying like the wind Through all the broken dreams And vanished years"-- Garcia/Hunter, "Stella Blue" "'See for yourself.' said Mr. Burroughs, and they walked into the classroom. They didn't have to open the door—Tommy thought this was pretty familiar—because the door had already been torn off, broken in two, and thrown down the hall.

What Came from the Stars by Gary D. Schmidt

"What Came from the Stars" is written in the third person, but the reader still gets a vivid sense of Tommy Pepper, the protagonist. This book could not have been written in first person, and Schmidt knew that. In third person, we can ache for Tommy's losses. If written in first person, he could have come across as a complainer or whiner.

My Love from the Star - Wikipedia

What Came from the Stars is written with two parallel story lines—Tommy's story in normal print and the Valorim's story in italics—giving the book added depth and interest. This is a rich fantasy that draws the reader in from the first chapter and keeps hurtling along at a breakneck pace until the exciting and satisfying end.

Book Review - What Came from the Stars by Gary D. Schmidt ...

It came from the stars. It came on May 15th, 2014 and fell down from the sky as the only bright thing on a rainy night. It landed two miles from my house, and landed just close enough that I didn't turn back enough and think it was no use, and just far enough that nobody would come all the way with me so I could prove it to them.
